With the first snow of the season, the small boy seizes the first opportunity to get all the sleigh rides he can, and always tries to show his companions what good stuff is in him by jumping aboard while they are in motion. He attempted to board a moving sleigh, but only succeeded in launching himself almost under the runners.

In the evening there will be a Christmas praise service. Mr. Bacon is the minister about whom the Savannah (Ga) people made such a great fuss because of something he said in a Fourth of July sermon. It will be remembered that upon investigation it was learned that the sentiment expressed was that of a Confederate general.

TO INSURE CITY HALL.

The Councilmen Appoint a Committee—They Order a Cistern at Center Square. With very little ado the few members of the Board of Aldermen present at the meeting last night adjourned until next Tuesday evening, there not being a quorum present. In the Council Chamber the first important matter discussed was a cistern for Center Square at a cost of $2,500. Through some little technicality it had been laid aside in the Board of Aldermen. Councilman C. S. Chapman said that the thing had died still-born in the Aldermen's Chamber, and the matter should be acted upon. He offered a resolution presenting the subject of building the cistern in a little different manner than that proposed, and the council rescinded the former action and adopted Mr. Chapman's idea. The dimensions of the cistern to be 20x55 feet and 18 feet deep, constructed of brick and cement. The council ordered the work done.

The Board of Councilmen concurred with the Aldermen in adopting the Board of Compensation's report on the new layout for Dublin street. By George Burns gets $150 for the encroachment caused by the layout on his land; and the city agrees to erect the present stone wall in proper place.

Councilman C. S. Chapman offered a resolution asking that all the houses in the city be properly numbered.

Councilman Cannon spoke about the trouble the present numbering causes. His house on South Main street is numbered 169, while the next house has the same number, which creates considerable annoyance and trouble.

Councilman Bryan told of an alderman who did not favor numbering the streets, for a year or so yet, basing his position on the fact, that the New England directory contained all the new numbers and a change could make trouble.

Councilman Blair said the resolution ought to have passed the other board, but they had tabled it, and the councilmen might as well fire this at them as not.

Councilman Bryan wanted it referred to the Commissioners as to pay to the Aldermen, who, for some reason object to entrusting the work to the city engineer.

Councilman McMahon objected to sending it to the road commissioners, as long as the city has an engine and a street sweeper. Councilman C. S. Chapman made appeal for insurance on the City hall building, claiming that owing to the failure to name any Alderman as a member of the committee, to see that the building was insured, the city had been neglected in the Board of Aldermen.

Councilman McMahon said the vote was plain enough, for even an Alderman to understand. It was afterwards found that it was tabled in the Board of Aldermen, so the Council had to offer another resolution covering the subject and providing for the appointment of one Alderman and two Councilmen to look after this matter.

Councilman Cannon made an earnest plea for the insurance.

The city's interest in the building should be insured for $20,000. Messrs. Blair and Webster were the Councilmen appointed to meet the one Alderman, to look after this important matter. The meeting then adjourned until next Tuesday evening.

ACTOR GRILEY DINED.

The Pedestrian Club Give Him a Banquet at the Tremont.

The Thirteen club, composed of a number of Waterbury's young men, who call themselves pedestrians, at the Tremont last evening, gave a banquet to Charles T. Griley, of this city, a member of the club and also a member of Atkinson & Cook's Dramatic company. The members of the club were out in full force and the party, including nearly all of the Atkinson & Cook company and representatives of the press, sat down to the table at midnight.

Landlord David's menu comprised fourteen courses and was served in accordance with the good reputation of the house. After the bill of fare had been thoroughly discussed, President H. F. Baker of the club, as toastmaster, took charge of the party and his word was law. After a few introductory remarks in which he alluded to Mr. Griley in complimentary terms, he introduced William E. Moses, the secretary of the club, who responded to the toast, "The Club."

Mr. Griley followed, speaking of "The Stage." H. R. Stratton facetiously responded to the toast "Our Friend" and C. W. Burpee spoke for "The Press." To F. W. LaForge was assigned the delicate task of responding to the toast, "The Ladies," and he did it with grace and distinction. Numerous other toasts were responded to by members of the club and dramatic company, and Messrs. Bickenmeyer and McKeever interspersed the program with musical imitations for which they were celebrated.

ATTORNEY O'NEIL AS AN ACROBAT.

He Cuts a Pretty Cap in the District Court Room.

Judge Bradstreet has to-day hearing a case at the district court and Attorney Cole was cross-examining a witness. Attorney O'Neil was sitting near by rocking to and fro. There were quite a number of witnesses and spectators in the room but none of them evidently noticed Attorney O'Neil's peculiar position. Suddenly there was a commotion in the direction of his chair that attracted everybody's attention. O'Neil's head disappeared, two feet were seen elevated in the air above the table, and Attorney Lowe was seen rushing toward the witness.

When the people supposed to be a lawyer in fit of apoplexy, Mr. Lowe, with the strength of a Hercules, raised the attorney to his position in the chair. He was apparently enjoying his usual health as was indicated by the extremely high color of his countenance. Whether this was due to a rush of blood to the head or to his native modesty, is not positively known. The noted lawyer, engrossed with legal matters, lost his equilibrium and had it not been for the fact that the witness would have turned a complete back somersault.

D. C. Callender & Co., 1 and 3 Exchange place, Waterbury, Conn., are adding daily special attractions in Goods for Holiday gifts.

Mrs. Dr. Armand, the great Clairvoyant, will remain at the Cooley House but one week longer, until Friday, December 23. Do not fail to see her, as she is wonderful.

Darius Penny is a farmer residing in the vicinity of Mizentop. On Friday last he heard a great disturbance among his poultry. He took his gun and hastened to learn the cause. He discovered a large owl in the act of carrying off one of his fowls, and he succeeded in shooting him. The owl had a steel trap and chain attached to one of his feet, which he had worn so long that the injury, if any, made by the trap was entirely healed.

A Brookfield man is the essence of humanity. He could not bear the cruelty of cutting pigs' throats while alive, so he had them knocked in the head before they were stuck.

Mrs. Kate Smith, widow of James Smith, who was killed a short time since in the case of the bridge, was yesterday paid $1,000 by Vice-President W. H. Stevenson of the Housatonic railroad.

Burglars entered the branch grocery store of D. M. Welch & Son, at 8 Grand avenue, New Haven, early Monday morning and stole $450 and a collection of counterfeit coins from the money drawer.

OUR CITY'S CHRISTMAS TRADE.

Our City Trade appears to be booming and blooming. All the forecasts of the coming festive season are presented with taste and we may add temptation. The store windows are decorated with more than the usual elaboration of Christmas-tide, and we are pleased to add that there is already an amount of patronage to fill the coffers and gladden the hearts of our enterprising store-keepers. Of course the Democrat advertisers stand easily first in the matter of decorative display. We give this evening another installment of the Democrat Business Directory:

THE PEOPLE'S MARKET

Is a name distinctive enough to suggest what may be had within. To the good people of Brooklyn it is an acknowledged accommodation; and from all we learn a visit to 293 Bank street will prove satisfactory to purchasers.

CHARLEY WELTON, 24 BANK STREET

Invites an inspection of his smoking supplies at his well equipped store. He has cigars of the finest brands, and tobacco of the most approved cuts, and pipes and cigarette cases and smoking sets of varied and elaborate designs.

THE RICHMOND, RINK BUILDING

Is well supplied with the very seasonable articles of Stoves and Furnaces. No matter how many Richmonds there may be in the field in the contest for public patronage, Mr. W. H. Clark the proprietor of the one says he will hold his ground against any competitors.

THE PEOPLE'S DRUG STORE

At Coughlan's block, Baldwin street, in addition to its "all the year round" pharmaceutical business, enters the field of competition in holiday goods. The attraction in the fact of a uniform price of 25 cents for toys and minor articles of ornament; and looking at some of these, the wonder will be how they could be manufactured for the price and still give a profit to maker, wholesale dealer and retailer.

WILLIAM H. COLLINS,

Of 135 South Main street, has, as usual, a choice stock of Groceries, Family Liquors, Provisions, etc. All suitable for a special Christmas trade, as well as for the supply of permanent and general customers.

ALDRIDGE, THE PHOTOGRAPHER,

Hangs out his specimens of portraits at 11 Exchange Place. They are of the highest style of finish, and patrons may estimate the satisfaction they will receive at his hands by recognition of the speaking likenesses of friends in his show case.

DR. ROBBINS

is always at home for consultation at his office, 27 Leavenworth street. Christmas emergencies and ailments are followed by Christmas evils of dyspepsia, and the knowledge of having a reliable Doctor to resort to at once will be half the cure. Electricity is a specialty with Dr. Robbins, and as a curative agent there is no dispute about its effectiveness.

ENTERTAINMENTS.

JACQUES' OPERA HOUSE.

A large audience greeted Atkinson & Cook's Dramatic company at the Opera House last night. It was the opening of a week's engagement of the company in this city, and had special local interest inasmuch as it was the first appearance here of Charles T. Griley, a well known Waterbury young man who won laurels in polo contests and promises to achieve success upon the stage. The piece presented was the well known western drama "49."

In which Mr. Griley was to play the part of a cowboy, who, in the person of a cowboy, and Bed Rock, in both of which characters he did creditable work. Mr. Griley is pre-eminently fitted for comedy parts. He is supple, graceful, a good singer and an eager and ambitious student. That he is versatile no one who has seen him will attempt to deny and that commendable quality will be generally developed on the stage as he advances in his profession. He did not have his best character last night and he conducted himself admirably, and the ovation given him at the end of the second act did not "rattle" him in the least.

Called before the curtain he graciously accepted the floral tributes presented by friends and bowed himself off the stage. "49" is too familiar to everybody to call for comment. Improvements have been made in it since it was first brought out and more might be added. The hotel scene from the door would hardly be recognized by a traveler in the Sierras. Miss Annie Louise Ames' Carrots is that of the rollicking, vivacious, and bewitching Carrots of Lizzie May Umler. Miss Ames resembles Kate Girard in stature and is not quite as lithe as Miss Umler, but her portrayal of the young heiress is better than Miss Girard's when she was alive and much as it is quite equal to that of Miss Umler. E. P. Sullivan's physique is probably the best calculated for the character of Forty-nine than any one of who essays the portrayal of the generous hearted whole souled niner. He prominently characterizes the character of the niner and is touching in the pathetic portions of the play. The company this evening will present "The Lancashire Lass," in which Mr. Griley will appear as Philip Kerby, a Lancashire farmer.

NAUGHTY NUGGETS.

W. F. Bryant, in "Keep It Dark," at the Gem Opera House to-night. The advance sale of seats has been quite large.

The bus was delayed about an hour last night, caused by the harness breaking. There was a very large crowd on the bus at the time, a great many of whom were ladies well laden with holiday gifts who, rather than give up the break were repaired, walked home.

The funeral of Charles Talbot was largely attended from St. Francis's church this morning.

Miss Lizzie Walsh starts to-morrow morning for Indianapolis, Ind., to visit her father who resides in that city.

The case of W. H. Scoville has been postponed.
